ABOUT THE DANIEL BOONE NATIONAL FOREST

The Forest – The Daniel Boone National Forest provides administrative oversight and support to four districts, and support to three Job Corps Centers. The Forest manages approximately 709,000 acres of National Forest System lands and has the highest concentration of rock arches in the eastern United States. Forest ecosystems range from dry upland oak ridges to lush cove communities. Millions of visitors come to enjoy the scenic beauty and abundant wildlife that the Forest has to offer. The Forest contains 17,888 acres of water and hundreds of miles of rivers and streams including Cave Run Lake, Laurel River Lake and the Cumberland River, renowned for their boating, fishing, and other recreation. Other special areas include the Red River Gorge Geological Area, Natural Arch Scenic Area, Clifty Wilderness, Beaver Creek Wilderness, and five wildlife management areas. Over 600 miles of trails provide a quiet escape for hikers, horseback riders and other trail users get back to nature. The 269-mile Sheltowee Trace National Recreation Trail extends the entire length of the Daniel Boone. Southeast Kentucky also hosts the largest elk herd in the eastern US (over 16,000) with many present on Redbird and Stearns Districts.
